

Fotios Raptis

TD Economics

Fotios Raptis is the senior international economist with TD economics. With over 12 years of experience as a professional economist, his current research interests include developments in the European, Japanese, and emerging market economies, including China. Before joining TD economics in 2016, he worked at the Bank of Canada in Ottawa for over five years where he was responsible for producing economic forecasts for the U.S., Canadian, and various emerging market economies.