The State of the Market – Where We Are in the Cycle

The seventh annual and popular “State of the Markets” panel discusses past market cycles, the current cycle and how the late position in the cycle influences underwriting and decisioning. Our panelists will provide specific, actionable and useful approaches for today’s market climate and will not shy away from tough topics. They will explore key questions such as: What did you learn from past cycles? Where are we in the current cycle? What do you expect the next few years to look like? What are you doing now as a result of the current cycle? When do you expect the next shoe to drop? How will it affect the small-middle market? What industries might be most at risk? The candid and insightful responses will keep you steps ahead of the market and your competitors.
