

Heath Morris
Office of Examinations
U.S. Small Business Administration

Mr. Morris serves as the National Director of the Office of Examinations and Chief Compliance Officer of the Investment Division at the U.S. Small Business Administration, overseeing the enforcement of various federal laws, securities regulations, and policies as applied to all SBA registered Investment Companies across the United States. Headquartered in Washington D.C., Mr. Morris oversees the Office of Examination's various regional offices as well, with staff members stationed in New York, San Francisco, Chicago, Houston, Denver, Arlington, Miami, and Atlanta. The Office of Examinations boasts a highly talented team of professional accountants, examiners, and attorneys that provide regulatory oversight by conducting routine examinations to bolster confidence in the SBIC Program and reinforces its continued growth and success.

Mr. Morris comes to the SBA from Goldman Sachs & Co. where he served in many leadership, executive, and attorney advisor capacities within the Firm's Securities Division, including the Office of Supervisory Control & Operational Risk, the Office of Management & Strategy, the Office of Global Securities Trade Management, and the Office of Legal and Regulatory Securities Settlements. Prior to Goldman, Mr. Morris spent time with the Securities and Exchange Commission's Division of Enforcement in the Atlanta Regional Office, where he covered various matters including Insider Trading and Ponzi scheme cases. Additionally, Mr. Morris worked with the Mississippi Secretary of State's Office in the Securities & Public Lands Enforcement Division. Mr. Morris is a well-established attorney and executive with extensive business professional skills in dealing with financial strategy, securities compliance, and regulatory enforcement matters for both public and private sectors.
